FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

BILLINGS – An educator with proven leadership skills in her profession and community has been named vice president for advancement at Rocky Mountain College. Julie (Tschetter) Seedhouse will commence her new job July 2, according to RMC President Michael R. Mace, who made the announcement June 15.

“We’re very pleased and excited to have Julie join our administrative team,” Mace said. “We’re confident she will bring the experience and expertise to benefit RMC that she has demonstrated worked so well in her other endeavors.”

Seedhouse, who was director of alumni relations at her alma mater, Montana State University Billings, since 2007, is well known for her involvement in a variety of professional and community organizations. She currently serves on the board of the YWCA and has served on boards for the Billings Education Association and Venture Theatre, while also volunteering for Habitat for Humanity, McKinley School Renovation Task Force and the Billings Public Schools Calendar Committee.

Seedhouse also served as two-time co-chair of the annual MEA-MFT Educators’ Conference and on the MEA-MFT -- Professional Issues and Development Committee, and the Montana Women’s Leadership Cadre. She is an alumna of Leadership Montana -- class of 2010, and Leadership Billings -- class of 2011.

“I look forward to helping Montana’s oldest institution of higher learning continue to grow its facilities and scholarship endowments so that it continues to provide the best educational opportunities possible for its students, the best value for its investments, and for its donors,” Seedhouse said.

Seedhouse earned her bachelor’s degree in education from Eastern Montana College in 1989, and a master’s in technical communications from Montana Tech in 2000 and a master’s in public relations from MSUB in 2011. She taught high school English in Butte from 1989-2002, and middle school and high school English in Billings from 2002-2007, before being named MSUB director of alumni relations.

While in Butte she served on the Butte Silver Bow Planning Board, the Butte Silver Bow Tax Appeal Board and the Orphan Girl Theatre Board.

Seedhouse is married to Shaun Seedhouse. She has two sons, Bryce, 21, and Nik, 18, Pedersen.
