

RMC STAFF COUNCIL

ROCKY MOUNTAIN COLLEGE

Greetings from Staff Council

RMC Staff Council Leadership would like to formally invite all RMC employees to attend staff council meetings this year.

The Staff Council of Rocky Mountain College exists to enhance communication within the College; encourage and facilitate professional development; provide a forum for discussion of matters pertinent and important to the staff of the College; educate staff members about existing policies and procedures; and to advise and make recommendations about existing and proposed college policies and procedures.

Hourly employees who attend are allowed to be clocked in for the duration of the meeting.

Meetings are held in the Selover board room from Noon - 1:00pm

Please contact any of the current staff council board members with any questions you may have.

Not sure if Staff Council meetings are right for you? Check out these testimonials from attendees:

Staff Council has been a great way to get involved with people from across campus, and the more people who attend, the more value we add to our collective experience - we are the support group for each other.

Lisa Wallace - Director of Career Services

I attend Staff Council Monthly meetings to support a colleague. This past year was educational, engaging and more importantly - a value-add experience. Each month I either learned something new, or had an opportunity to reinforce my knowledge.

Sean Coleman – Director of Admissions

For me, Staff Council is a welcome source of campus information and interaction with my colleagues. It can be easy to work in our own silos, so to speak. Staff Council meetings are where I can put a face to a name (behind an email address), learn a little more about the individuals, and get a better appreciation for what the various departments are doing to keep this college going.
