- Guest Presenter
  - Director of Career Services - Lisa Wallace
    - Overview of RMC internships and work studies and duties of Career Services.
      - Are there areas on campus that we could be utilizing interns/work studies that we don't already?
      - How do your processes change with international students?
      - Can you explain the restrictions on the funds we receive from the Federal Government issued to RMC for internships and work studies?
        - Could the funding be used by graduate students for rotations or fieldwork? Or is this just for undergraduate students?
      - What are the differences between an internship and a work study?
      - What non-profit organizations do RMC work study students frequently work with?
      - Why might non-profits choose not to engage in our work study program as much as they have in the past?
      - How do RMC students learn about internships/work studies?
      - Would it be an option for businesses to send a representative to campus to speak with our students about job/internship opportunities?
      - Other than federal funding, how else does RMC receive funding for internships/work studies?
      - As a faculty or staff member, what is the process if we hear about a business interested in hiring our students?
      - How can we better support you and the work you do for our students?
- Training/Info sharing
  - None to report.
